

A TUNABLE MULTI-BAND RECEIVER BY ON-CHIP SELECTABLE FILTERING

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A multiple frequency RF communications receiver is disclosed which permits greater integration on standard silicon chips and consumes less power than previous receivers. A new method for selecting the various frequency bands with a high amount of isolation and low power consumption is described. Compared to previous receiver implementations, there is no loss of selectivity in the receiver.